Costigan, a student at the University at Fayette, alleged to have been sand-Fayette, alleged to have been sand-bagged and dragged out of town Tuesday night, has made a full confession, in writing, exonerating every one but himself. To avoid taking part in the oratorical contest, Costigan beamcared his clothes with mud, daubed his face with blood, and, by means of a small syringe, injected fluid under the skin above the eye so that the eye appeared swelled as if struck by a club.

He reappeared at his room at 11 o'clock at night and toid his room-mate that unknown men had knocked him down, carrying him four miles in the country. The matter was investigated by the college officers, but no clue could be obtained. Costigan's actions excited suspicion, and finally his roommate charged him with complicity in the matter.

Costigan then admitted that he had planned the whole affair to escape the contest and create a sensation. Costigan is about twenty-five years of age. He was a candidate for County Superintendent of Schools in Clavton County last Fall. He has left the University.

established a lumber-yard here and did a good business. In itself they sold out to L. J. Lipman and Alexander Taylor.
Taylor was formerly a builder in Brooklyn, and zoon after entering into business with Lipman the firm began to accept building contracts. A large business with Lipman the firm began to accept building contracts. A large business was done, and in the same year the company was incorporated. Strange to say, it sold lumber cheaper at retail than other firms could purchase it wholesale. Recently It was running and the Company was in financial difficulties.

About six months ago Taylor sold his interest to James Cunmeen, also of the Hrocklyn, who became President of the Hrocklyn, who became President of the Company LONDON, March 10.—The Morning publishes an interview with M. Malato, the Anarchist leader, who has recently returned from Sicily Malato declares that the troubles in Sicily were the outcome of distress among the inhabitants rather than the result of Anarchistic teachings. He says that the Anarchistic teachings. He says that the Anarchistic teachings. He says that the Anarchistic teachings he says that the Anarchistic tried hard to forment a general revolt, but failed.

Malato said he did not believe that civil war was likely to break out in Italy, yet he would not be surprised if Thursday's cutrage in Rome proved to be the beginning of a long series of similar outrages, and although ner.

Here Is the Book That Will Make

Millionaires Squirm. Mr. Stead's book on Chicago, its dis tice O'Donnell this marning charged with stealing a pig from a Pennslyvania Railroad freight car consigned to the Armeur Packing Company in Jersey City.

Mr. Stead says he got his inspiration o write the book from the poetry of James Russell Lowell. In his preface

James Russell Lowell, In his pretace
Mr. Stead says:

"The original conception of Christ coming to Chicago reached me, like most of my religio-philosophical notions, through the poetry of James Russell Lowell. The short poem which he styled
"A Paruble" always seems to me to sum up in a page the vital essence of Christ's teaching."
